A true Description of the foure Quarters of this yeare.

And first of winter.

© in vꝝ mꝝ X.

WINTER (the first Quarter Astronomical of this yeare 1632)
began the 12. day of December last past,
for at that time the Sunne in the Meredian
entred into the first part of Capricorne, & made the Winter Solstice having the shortest day and longest night in all the yeare. And so winter Quarter continueth untill the 11. of March following; for then the Sunne entreth into Aries, and beginneth the Quarter called the Spring.

This winter Quarter is bynature cold and moyst, unpleasant (for the most part thereof) unto all travellers either by Sea

or Land, and unto aged persons it is very comberous and noysome, causing superfluties of rawnes, and abundance of ill humours to overflow the body; it is an enemy to all kind of living creatures, and shuteth up the poares and strength of the earth.

The sicknesses of this season, are gripings and griefes of the sides, ache in the head, ioynes, and reynes, inflammations of the lunges, cathars, coughes, paynes in the breast and sides, palsies, falling sicknes and the like.

As for the inclination of the weather, you may see it in the daily disposition of each month following.

Of the second quarter of the yeare called the Spring.

☉ in ♈ II.

The spring being the second part of this care, doth begin the 11. day of March for then the Sunne doth enter into the first degree of Aries, the first Equinoctiall Signe, making the day and night of one equall

equal length throughout the whole world and so the Spring continueth unto the
12. of Iune.

This quarter of the yeare is naturally hot and moyst, temperately, and is therefore reckoned the most wholesome time in the yeare to remove Sickneses gotten before, and to avoid and prevent those which are likely to follow; for those humours which abound in mans body and doe oppresse nature; are now in this season most easily avoided, either by letting of blood, purging, bathing, sweating or such like.

The diseases of this quarter are smallpockes, meafels, flushing in the face, scabs phrensie, Lithargies, phansies, and such like.

Touching the state of the weather, you may see it in the daily inclination of the Season.

Of the third part of the yeare, called Summer.

☉ in ♋ ♌ ♍.

Summer the third part and quarter of the yeare, doth begin upon the 12 day
of

A Prognostication.

of Iune, whē the Sun doth ērer into the first degree of the signe Cancer, making the Summer Solstice, the longest day & shortest night, for now hath the Sun his greatest declination northwards: and Summer continueth untill the thirteenth of September, that the Sunne enters into Libra.

This season by his proper nature is hot and dry, likned to Choller, converting the humours in mens bodyes from cold and moysture, to heate and drynesse, and spreadeth them abroad in each part of the same and mans digestion is not now so strong as in colder times, by reason that heate is disperfed into the outward parts, and leaves the inward.

The sicknesses of this season are fluxes of blood, and feavers of sundry sorts, Blisters, paine in the eares, head and backe, pestilence, Jaundies and the like.

The state of the weather you may see in the daily inclination.

Of the fourth part of the yeare, called Autumne or Harvest.

☉ in ♎ m 7.

Autumne or Harvest, the fourth & last part of the yeare, doth begin upon the 12

Dade. 1633.

13. day of September ; for then the Sunne entreth into the second Equinoctiall signe Libra, and bringeth the day and night to be of one length againe, as before in the month of March. And this quarter doth continue until the twelfth day of Decēber.

This season being by nature cold and dry, applyed unto melancholly, varieth altogether from the nature of the spring, because this season is for the most part unconstant, and is therefor called of the learned Physitians the mother or nurse of deadly sicknesses, (and say they) it is a most dangerous time; for what hath beene evill in the seasons before, through the corrupt state of the yere, or other accidentall causes, that same will in this season shew and utter it selfe, to the great grievance of many; wherefore this time of all other is dangerous for sicknesses, & great heed is to be taken as well in the order of mans dyet, as in his cloathing and exercise, because of the varietie of this season.

The diseases usuall to this quarter, are many of those which molested the people in Summer, with the Emrods, spleene, grieve in the back and kidneys, melancholly, fluxes of blood, &c.
